Gender & Disaster Pod

An initiative of WHGNE, WHIN & MIRI

Formation & Purpose

The Gender & Disaster (GAD) Pod is an initiative of two Victorian Women's Health organisations, Women's Health Goulburn North East \(WHGNE\) and Women's Health In the North \(WHIN\), working in partnership with Monash University Injury Research Institute \(MIRI\).

The GAD Pod was formally established in 2015 to promote an understanding of the role played by gender in survivor responses to natural disaster, and to embed these insights into emergency management practice.

Headed by WHGNE/WHIN Researcher Dr Debra Parkinson (Adjunct Research Fellow, MIRI), the GAD Pod reports to the Executive Officers of WHGNE and WHIN (with accountability to relevant funding bodies), and maintains a mutually influential relationship with MIRI and the Victorian Gender and Disaster (GAD) Taskforce.

With funding from State and Federal governments and agencies, the GAD Pod is working to further initiatives in the area of gender and disaster.

History

The initiatives of the GAD Pod are grounded in qualitative research undertaken by the Pod partners in the aftermath of the 2009 Black Saturday bushfires. These were the most deadly fires since colonial settlement, with 173 people losing their lives, 414 people injured, 2029 houses destroyed and 7000 people displaced.

Wanting to offer support—but aware that recovery organisations were inundated with help from Australia and overseas—WHGNE consulted on-the-ground organisations about the most appropriate way, and time, to assist. Between late 2009 and 2013, researchers conducted in-depth interviews with 30 women, 47 workers, and 32 men affected by the fires – capturing their first-hand accounts of the disaster and its aftermath.

The research was staggered, with initial interviews conducted with women and health/community workers only. In 2012, the findings from this initial research—captured in The Way He Tells It: Relationships after Black Saturday—were released at Australia's first conference on natural disasters and family violence Identifying the Hidden Disaster. Although worldwide literature suggests that increased violence against women is characteristic of post-disaster recovery, this was the first research conducted in Australia which identified and examined the link between natural disasters and violence against women.

The Hidden Disaster conference galvanised interest in gender issues in disaster, and led to an invitation by Monash University's Injury Research Institute, to lead a successful partnership submission to the National Disaster Resilience Grants Scheme. With new project funding, the researchers continued their interviews—this time with men—to consider men's experiences of health and wellbeing during and after Black Saturday. The findings of this research are captured in the research report, Men on Black Saturday: Risks and opportunities for change.

Since undertaking the foundational research, the Pod partners have led, or collaborated on, a range of initiatives—with critical input from emergency management leaders and workers, community members and workers, experts in the fields of masculinity, gender and disaster, and federal, state and local government departments—intended to inform responses to women and men in future disasters. In January 2014, Australia's first Gender and Disaster Taskforce was established in Victoria, auspiced by the Victorian Emergency Management Commissioner.
